Anthrozoology is an interdisciplinary field that studies the place that animals occupy in the human society and culture and the relations that the humans build with them.

This domain does not deal with the study of animals themselves, but uses the research done in fields like ethology, zoology, compared psychology, primatology, etc. to study the complexity of the human-animal interactions.

In the world of today, it becomes more and more clear that we are not the only species capable of thinking and affection and that the complex relations between people, animals and ecosystems make everything live in a network of interdependence.

The Anthrozoology Symposium will take place at the headquarter of the Institute of Economic and Social Research „Gh. Zane”, on October 2nd, 2018, from 10 o'clock.
